Introduction Where Opportunity Meets Talent®

The TTI Success Insights® Talent Insights Report was designed to increase the understanding of an individual's talents. The report provides insight to three distinct areas: behaviors, motivators and the integration of these. Understanding strengths and weaknesses in these areas will lead to personal and professional development and a higher level of satisfaction.

The following is an in-depth look at your personal talents in the three main sections:

Behaviors

This section of the report is designed to help you attain a greater knowledge of yourself as well as others. The ability to interact effectively with people may be the difference between success and failure in your work and personal life. Effective interaction starts with an accurate perception of oneself.

Motivators

This section of the report provides information on the why of your actions, which with application and coaching, can tremendously impact your valuing of life. Once you know the motivations that drive your actions, you will immediately be able to understand the causes of conflict.

Integrating Behaviors and Motivators

This section of the report will help you blend the how and the why of your actions. Once you can understand how your behaviors and motivators blend together, your performance will be enhanced and you will experience an increase in satisfaction.

Introduction Behaviors Section

Behavioral research suggests that the most effective people are those who understand themselves, both their strengths and weaknesses, so they can develop strategies to meet the demands of their environment.

A person's behavior is a necessary and integral part of who they are. In other words, much of our behavior comes from "nature" (inherent), and much comes from "nurture" (our upbringing). It is the universal language of "how we act," or our observable human behavior.

In this report we are measuring four dimensions of normal behavior. They are:

- How you respond to problems and challenges.
- How you influence others to your point of view.
- How you respond to the pace of the environment.
- How you respond to rules and procedures set by others.

This report analyzes behavioral style; that is, a person's manner of doing things. Is the report 100% true? Yes, no and maybe. We are only measuring behavior. We only report statements from areas of behavior in which tendencies are shown. To improve accuracy, feel free to make notes or edit the report regarding any statement from the report that may or may not apply, but only after checking with friends or colleagues to see if they agree.

*"All people exhibit all four behavioral factors in varying degrees of intensity."
—W.M. Marston*

General Characteristics

Based on Amy's responses, the report has selected general statements to provide a broad understanding of her work style. These statements identify the basic natural behavior that she brings to the job. That is, if left on her own, these statements identify HOW SHE WOULD CHOOSE TO DO THE JOB. Use the general characteristics to gain a better understanding of Amy's natural behavior.

Amy wants to be liked by fellow workers, as well as be recognized for doing quality work. Coworkers know that her projects will always be done correctly. Her motto for work may well be the coined phrase, "quality is job number one." Getting the project or job done right is important to her. If forced to choose between producing quality work or quantities of work, quality will be the winner. She is adaptable. When Amy sees something that is wrong she wants to fix it. She is oriented toward achieving practical results. Amy has a need to achieve in an environment in which the quality is controlled. She can become frustrated when put in a situation that is nothing more than a rambling discussion. She tends to be her own worst critic constantly reminding herself that she could have done better if given more time. She wants to be seen as a responsible person and will avoid behavior that could be seen by others as irresponsible. She can be sensitive about any comments regarding the quality of her work. She strives forward constantly to improvement in everything she does. Amy prefers that things be orderly and she will approach work in a systematic manner. She likes to work behind the scene and be seen as someone who is organized and has her life in order.

Amy is the type of person who will accept challenges, and accept them seriously. She is good at analyzing situations that can be felt, touched, seen, heard, personally observed or experienced. Her motto is, "facts are facts." She tends to make her decisions after deliberation and gives weight to all the pros and cons. She sees herself as factual, and "down-to-earth." She is more than casually interested in "theory." When confronted with a problem she will look for a method, a formula, a procedure or a system to solve it. Amy follows company policy, if aware of it. She, capable of making daily decisions routinely, usually becomes cautious about the bigger decisions; she wants to be absolutely certain her decision is correct. She likes to collect data for decision making and may collect so much it makes the decision harder. She feels tension when forced to make major decisions quickly.

Amy likes to ask questions to clarify the communications. She gathers data in order to be certain she is correct in her work, communications or decision making. Because Amy wants to be certain she is performing her work assignments correctly, she enjoys working for a manager who explains what is expected of her. She is usually soft-spoken, but her demeanor may be deceptive to those who work with her. She may possess strong and unwavering convictions that are not always apparent to others. She wants to establish good will with others and to influence them in a friendly and sociable manner. Amy enjoys analyzing the motives of others. This allows her to develop her intuitive skills. She can be outgoing at times. Basically introverted, she will engage in social conversation when the occasion warrants. She is intuitive and is able to ask good questions in order to get the critical, complete information she seeks. She is patient and persistent in her approach to achieving goals. She responds to challenges in a cooperative manner and wants the "team" to win without the need of a perceived "shining star."

Value to the Organization

This section of the report identifies the specific talents and behavior Amy brings to the job. By looking at these statements, one can identify her role in the organization. The organization can then develop a system to capitalize on her particular value and make her an integral part of the team.

- Comprehensive in problem solving.
- Accurate and intuitive.
- Defines, clarifies, gets information, criticizes and tests.
- Respect for authority and organizational structure.
- Will gather data for decision making.
- Proficient and skilled in her technical specialty.
- Maintains standards.

Checklist for Communicating

Most people are aware of and sensitive to the ways with which they prefer to be communicated. Many people find this section to be extremely accurate and important for enhanced interpersonal communication. This page provides other people with a list of things to DO when communicating with Amy. Read each statement and identify the 3 or 4 statements which are most important to her. We recommend highlighting the most important "DO's" and provide a listing to those who communicate with Amy most frequently.

Ways to Communicate

- Take time to be sure that she is in agreement and understands what you said.
- Follow through, if you agree.
- Be sincere and use a tone of voice that shows sincerity.
- Give her time to ask questions.
- Give her time to be thorough, when appropriate.
- Make an organized contribution to her efforts, present specifics and do what you say you can do.
- Give her time to verify reliability of your actions; be accurate, realistic.
- Draw up a scheduled approach to implementing action with a step-by-step timetable; assure her that there won't be surprises.
- Make an organized presentation of your position, if you disagree.
- Give her time to verify reliability of your comments--be accurate and realistic.
- Support your communications with correct facts and data.

Checklist for Communicating Continued

This section of the report is a list of things NOT to do while communicating with Amy. Review each statement with Amy and identify those methods of communication that result in frustration or reduced performance. By sharing this information, both parties can negotiate a communication system that is mutually agreeable.

Ways NOT to Communicate

- Don't be haphazard.
- Leave things to chance or luck.
- Make conflicting statements.
- Rush the decision-making process.
- Talk to her when you're extremely angry.
- Be vague about what's expected of either of you; don't fail to follow through.
- Give your presentation in random order.
- Use testimonies of unreliable sources; don't be haphazard.
- Talk in a loud voice or use confrontation.
- Make promises you cannot deliver.
- Say "trust me"--you must prove it.

Communication Tips

This section provides suggestions on methods which will improve Amy's communications with others. The tips include a brief description of typical people with whom she may interact. By adapting to the communication style desired by other people, Amy will become more effective in her communications with them. She may have to practice some flexibility in varying her communication style with others who may be different from herself. This flexibility and the ability to interpret the needs of others is the mark of a superior communicator.

When communicating with a person who is dependent, neat, conservative, perfectionist, careful and compliant:

- Prepare your "case" in advance.
- Stick to business.
- Be accurate and realistic.

Factors that will create tension or dissatisfaction:

- Being giddy, casual, informal, loud.
- Pushing too hard or being unrealistic with deadlines.
- Being disorganized or messy.

When communicating with a person who is ambitious, forceful, decisive, strong-willed, independent and goal-oriented:

- Be clear, specific, brief and to the point.
- Stick to business.
- Be prepared with support material in a well-organized "package."

Factors that will create tension or dissatisfaction:

- Talking about things that are not relevant to the issue.
- Leaving loopholes or cloudy issues.
- Appearing disorganized.

When communicating with a person who is patient, predictable, reliable, steady, relaxed and modest:

- Begin with a personal comment--break the ice.
- Present your case softly, nonthreateningly.
- Ask "how?" questions to draw their opinions.

Factors that will create tension or dissatisfaction:

- Rushing headlong into business.
- Being domineering or demanding.
- Forcing them to respond quickly to your objectives.

When communicating with a person who is magnetic, enthusiastic, friendly, demonstrative and political:

- Provide a warm and friendly environment.
- Don't deal with a lot of details (put them in writing).
- Ask "feeling" questions to draw their opinions or comments.

Factors that will create tension or dissatisfaction:

- Being curt, cold or tight-lipped.
- Controlling the conversation.
- Driving on facts and figures, alternatives, abstractions.

Perceptions

See Yourself as Others See You

A person's behavior and feelings may be quickly telegraphed to others. This section provides additional information on Amy's self-perception and how, under certain conditions, others may perceive her behavior. Understanding this section will empower Amy to project the image that will allow her to control the situation.

Self-Perception

Amy usually sees herself as being:

- Precise
- Thorough
- Moderate
- Diplomatic
- Knowledgeable
- Analytical

Others' Perception - Moderate

Under moderate pressure, tension, stress or fatigue, others may see her as being:

- Pessimistic
- Picky
- Worrisome
- Fussy

Others' Perception - Extreme

Under extreme pressure, stress or fatigue, others may see her as being:

- Perfectionistic
- Hard-to-Please
- Strict
- Defensive

The Absence of a Behavioral Factor

The absence of a behavioral factor may provide insight into situations or environments that may cause tension or stress. Based on research, we are able to identify situations that should be avoided or minimized in a person's day-to-day environment. By understanding the contribution of a low behavioral style, we are able to better articulate a person's talents and create environments where people can be more effective.

Situations and circumstances to avoid or aspects needed within the environment in order to minimize behavioral stress.

- Avoid situations where competition is a primary factor.
- Avoid work environments with a moving target as the only constant.
- Needs meeting and planning sessions with pre-disclosed agenda items in order to feel prepared.

Understanding that the need to adapt is unavoidable at times, below are tips for adapting to those with D above the energy line and/or tips for seeking environments that will be conducive to the low D.

- Seek an environment that allows for a humoristic approach to conflict situations.
- Focus on one task at a time to assure quality in problem solving.
- Seek partnership when forced to make decisions that do not have a procedure or set precedence.

Natural and Adapted Style

Amy's natural style of dealing with problems, people, pace of events and procedures may not always fit what the environment needs. This section will provide valuable information related to stress and the pressure to adapt to the environment.

Problems - Challenges

Natural

Amy is cautious in her approach to problem solving and does not attempt to demand that her view, or opinion, be accepted at face value. Amy likes to solve problems within the framework of a team environment. She will look for a compromise as opposed to a win-lose situation.

Adapted

Amy sees no need to change her approach to solving problems or dealing with challenges in her present environment.

People - Contacts

Natural

Amy is sociable and optimistic. She is able to use an emotional appeal to convince others of a certain direction. She likes to be on a team and may be the spokesman for the team. She will trust others and likes a positive environment in which to relate.

Adapted

Amy sees no need to change her approach to influencing others to her way of thinking. She sees her natural style to be what the environment is calling for.

Adapted Style

Natural Style

Natural and Adapted Style Continued

Pace - Consistency

Natural

Amy is deliberate and steady. She is willing to change, if the new direction is meaningful and consistent with the past. She will resist change for change's sake.

Adapted

Amy feels the need for mobility and the absence of routine. She feels comfortable juggling several projects at one time and can move from one project to another fairly easily.

Procedures - Constraints

Natural

Amy naturally is cautious and concerned for quality. She likes to be on a team that takes responsibility for the final product. She enjoys knowing the rules and can become upset when others fail to comply with the rules.

Adapted

Amy shows little discomfort when comparing her basic (natural) style to her response to the environment (adapted) style. The difference is not significant and Amy sees little or no need to change her response to the environment.

Adapted Style Natural Style

Adapted Style

Amy sees her present work environment requiring her to exhibit the behavior listed on this page. If the following statements DO NOT sound job related, explore the reasons why she is adapting this behavior.

- Being cordial and helpful when dealing with new clients or customers.
- Being a good "team player."
- Using restraint when confrontation occurs.
- Careful, thoughtful approach to decision making.
- Precedence of quality over efficiency.
- Compliance to high standards.
- Presenting a practical, proven approach to decision making.
- Sensitivity to existing rules and regulations.
- Critical appraisal of data.
- Precise, analytical approach to work tasks.
- Calculation of risks before taking action.
- Undemanding of others' time and attention.

Time Wasters

This section of your report is designed to identify time wasters that may impact your overall time use effectiveness. Possible causes and solutions will serve as a basis for creating an effective plan for maximizing your use of TIME and increasing your PERFORMANCE.

Seeking The Best, But Not Necessarily Workable Solutions

Always seeking the best solution may prohibit getting the task accomplished. Something better is always on the horizon.

Possible Causes:

- Want to do things right the first time
- Want personal approval for preciseness of work
- Fear criticism if solution doesn't work

Possible Solutions:

- Establish required standards
- Determine the solution that meets or exceeds those standards
- Set a timeline for making a decision or completing a task

Overreacting To Constructive Criticism

Overreacting to constructive criticism is the inappropriate overt or covert response to feedback and recommendations.

Possible Causes:

- Have a high comfort level with past methods
- Have high standards for work performance
- Think that your way is the correct way
- Don't see the benefit of doing things differently

Possible Solutions:

- Practice listening without evaluating comments from others
- Begin responding mentally with "that's interesting" or "that's a possibility" as a way of controlling immediate negative response

Adapted Style Natural Style

- Communicate feelings with peers and supervisors

Waiting For Events To Happen

Although patience may be a virtue, being pro-active allows the decision-maker to be in better control of events within their scope of influence.

Possible Causes:

- Want to affect the here and now
- Fear rushing into something will show unpreparedness
- Need for high standards inhibits getting started

Possible Solutions:

- Plan alternative solutions
- Determine most likely scenarios
- Implement a plan that best meets those needs without jeopardizing other scenarios

Prolong Events In Order To Gain Improved Results

Prolonging events in order to gain improved results is the process of doing and redoing, evaluating and re-evaluating and changing to and changing back as a way of "testing" the best possible outcome.

Possible Causes:

- Want to ensure that success is always achieved
- Feel that if rushed, the results will not be satisfactory
- Hope situations will work out themselves

Possible Solutions:

- Set realistic schedule and timeline
- Follow the schedule
- Seek advice or assistance from others

Adapted Style Natural Style

Fear of Mistakes

Fearing mistakes is the mental process of focusing on negative outcomes and is often a preoccupation with past mistakes.

Possible Causes:

- Want to avoid criticism
- Take criticism personally
- Want to be seen as efficient and competent

Possible Solutions:

- Practice focusing on past successes
- For every mistake that you think might happen, write down two positive possible outcomes for a completed task
- Focus on several possible future outcomes

Seeking "All" of The Facts

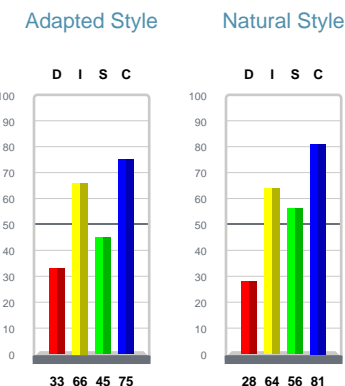

Seeking "all" of the facts is thought and action of continually gathering new information and re-evaluating current information.

Possible Causes:

- Want to be certain/prepared
- Want to avoid mistakes
- Want extended time for getting tasks done

Possible Solutions:

- Set a timeline for gathering new information or evaluating old information and then take action
- Evaluate importance or risk factors to how much information is actually needed

Areas for Improvement

In this area is a listing of possible limitations without regard to a specific job. Review with Amy and cross out those limitations that do not apply. Highlight 1 to 3 limitations that are hindering her performance and develop an action plan to eliminate or reduce this hindrance.

Amy has a tendency to:

- Be bound by procedures and methods--especially if she has been rewarded for following these procedures.
- Be self-deprecating--doesn't project self-confidence.
- Yield her position to avoid controversy.
- Have difficulty making decisions because she's mostly concerned about the "right" decision. If precedent does not give direction, her tendency is to wait for directions.
- Select people much like herself.
- Lean on supervisors if information and direction is not clear.
- Fail to tell others where she stands on an issue.
- Get bogged down in details and use details to protect her position.

Behavioral Hierarchy

The Behavioral Hierarchy graph will display a ranking of your natural behavioral style within a total of twelve (12) areas commonly encountered in the workplace. It will help you understand in which of these areas you will naturally be most effective.

1. Following Policy - Complying with the policy or if no policy, complying with the way it has been done.

2. Consistency - The ability to do the job the same way.

3. Frequent Interaction with Others - Dealing with multiple interruptions on a continual basis, always maintaining a friendly interface with others.

4. Analysis of Data - Information is maintained accurately for repeated examination as required.

5. Follow Up and Follow Through - A need to be thorough.

6. Organized Workplace - Systems and procedures followed for success.

7. People Oriented - Spending a high percentage of time successfully working with a wide range of people from diverse backgrounds to achieve "win-win" outcomes.

The Success Insights® Wheel

The Success Insights® Wheel is a powerful tool popularized in Europe. In addition to the text you have received about your behavioral style, the Wheel adds a visual representation that allows you to:

- View your natural behavioral style (circle).
- View your adapted behavioral style (star).
- Note the degree you are adapting your behavior.
- If you filled out the Work Environment Analysis, view the relationship of your behavior to your job.

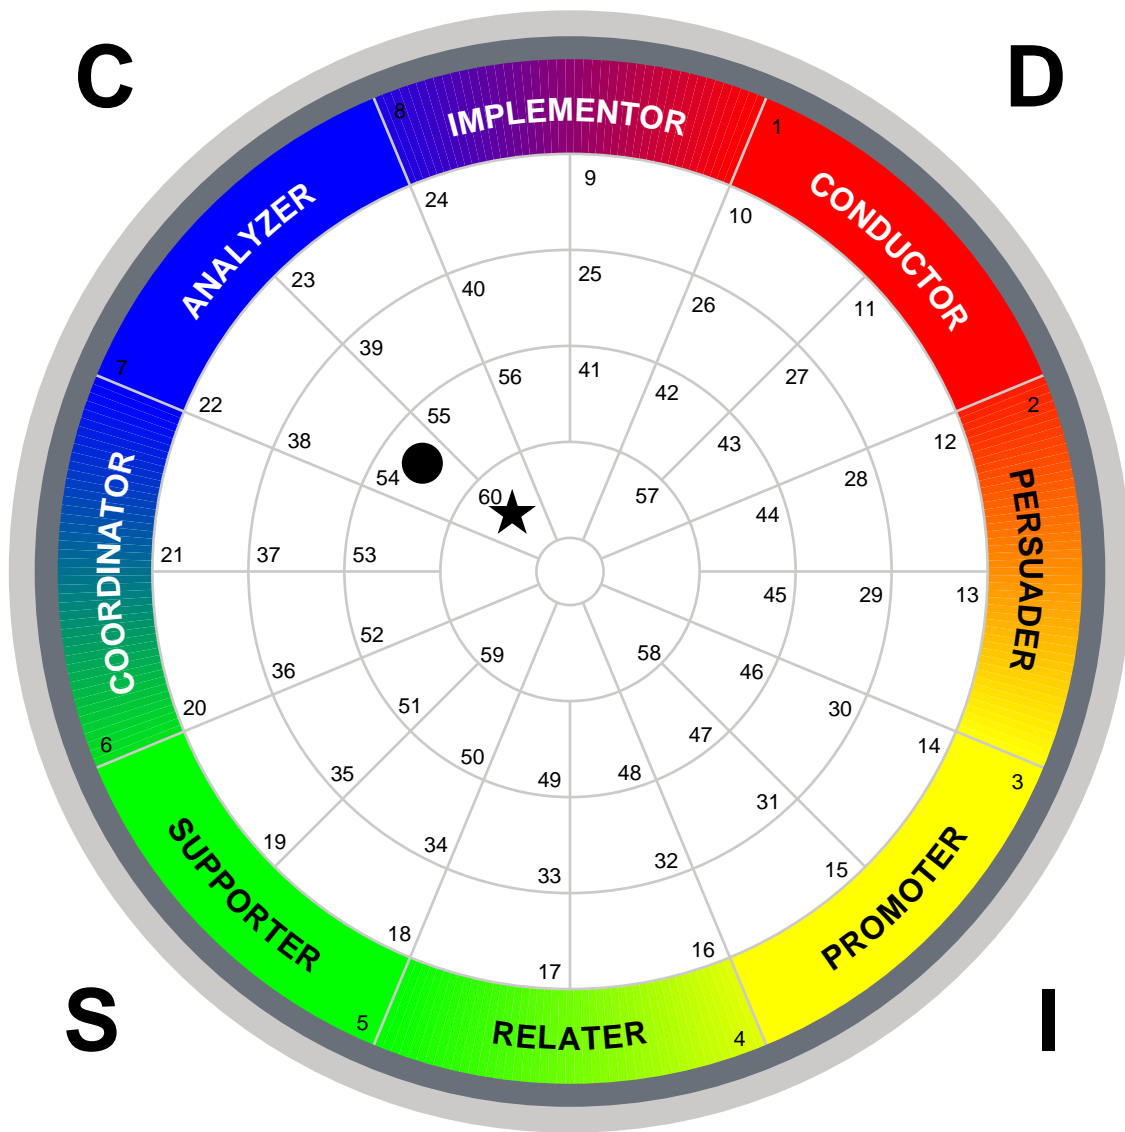

Notice on the next page that your Natural style (circle) and your Adapted style (star) are plotted on the Wheel. If they are plotted in different boxes, then you are adapting your behavior. The further the two plotting points are from each other, the more you are adapting your behavior.

If you are part of a group or team who also took the behavioral assessment, it would be advantageous to get together, using each person's Wheel, and make a master Wheel that contains each person's Natural and Adapted style. This allows you to quickly see where conflict can occur. You will also be able to identify where communication, understanding and appreciation can be increased.

Understanding Your Driving Forces

This report is based on six basic interests, or motivators in your life: Theoretical, Utilitarian, Aesthetic, Social, Individualistic and Traditional. You will learn how to explain, clarify and amplify some of the driving forces in your life. This report will empower you to build on your unique strengths, which you bring to work and life. You will learn how your passions from 12 core driving forces frame your perspectives and provide the most accurate understanding of you as a unique person.

Please pay careful attention to your top four driving forces, as they highlight what most powerfully moves you to action. As you examine the next tier of four driving forces, you'll recognize they may have strong pull for you, but only in certain situations. Finally, when reviewing the bottom four driving forces, you will identify your varying levels of indifference or total avoidance.

Once you have reviewed this report you will have a better grasp of one of the key areas in the Science of Self™ and will:

- Understand how your driving forces are at play in your career and relationships
- Be able to apply your understanding of your driving forces to your relationships and job-related performance
- Have a clearer impression of your purpose and direction in life, which can lead to greater satisfaction in work and life

General Characteristics

Based on your responses, the report has generated statements to provide a broad understanding of WHY YOU DO WHAT YOU DO. These statements identify the motivation that you bring to the job. However, you could have a potential Me-Me conflict when two driving forces seem to conflict with each other. Use the general characteristics to gain a better understanding of your driving forces.

Amy values people for who they are versus what they can provide. She will value the process and people involved more than the end result. She will accomplish tasks for the sake of accomplishment. Looking and feeling good enhances her daily productivity. Amy will flourish in an environment where she has the opportunity to create harmony and balance in her surroundings and relationships. She will thrive in a role where she can experience self-realization and gratification. She could be instrumental in identifying informational resources. She may spend considerable time researching a topic of interest. Amy tends to believe people should learn to do things themselves versus relying on others. She may question the amount of time individuals spend helping other people. She may pick and choose the traditions and beliefs to which she will adhere. She will evaluate each situation and determine how much collaboration is needed.

Amy tends to include others as part of the agenda without expecting anything in return. She is able to let go of possessions without looking at future needs or uses. She will focus on the importance of appearance as well as functionality. She will focus on the totality of a situation to ensure a rewarding interaction. Amy sometimes uses knowledge as a benchmark for success. She will benefit from a role that allows her to gain new knowledge. She may prioritize her work responsibilities over assisting others. She tends to believe hard work and persistence is within everyone's reach. At times Amy sees the importance of following a system and how she can apply it to a specific situation. She may be very helpful when working with others who share similar interests. She may focus on the greater good more than personal advancement. She may have the desire to be recognized for building cooperative alliances.

General Characteristics

Amy may strive to maintain collaboration in group settings. In most situations Amy may look for way to create collaboration. Following proven procedures may be more important than quick fixes. She sees value in following and implementing certain systems. Amy may be firm in her decisions and not be swayed by unfortunate circumstances. She may have the desire to expand her knowledge to be considered an expert in her chosen field. She is able to see the overall situation and strive for harmony. Being rewarded for her investment of time, talent or resources is not her driving force.

Primary Driving Forces Cluster

Your top driving forces create a cluster of drivers that move you to action. If you focus on the cluster rather than a single driver you can create combinations of factors that are very specific to you. The closer the scores are to each other the more you can pull from each driver. Think about the driver that you can relate to most and then see how your other primary drivers can support or complement to create your unique driving force.

1. Selfless - People who are driven by completing tasks for the greater good, with little expectation of personal return.

82

2. Harmonious - People who are driven by the experience, subjective viewpoints and balance in their surroundings.

74

3. Intellectual - People who are driven by opportunities to learn, acquire knowledge and the discovery of truth.

69

4. Intentional - People who are driven to assist others for a specific purpose, not just for the sake of being helpful or supportive.

57

Situational Driving Forces Cluster

Your middle driving forces create a cluster of drivers that come in to play on a situational basis. While not as significant as your primary drivers, they can influence your actions in certain scenarios.

5. Structured - People who are driven by traditional approaches, proven methods and a defined system for living.

56

6. Collaborative - People who are driven by being in a supporting role and contributing with little need for individual recognition.

50

7. Receptive - People who are driven by new ideas, methods and opportunities that fall outside a defined system for living.

32

8. Commanding - People who are driven by status, recognition and control over personal freedom.

31

Indifferent Driving Forces Cluster

You may feel indifferent toward some or all of the drivers in this cluster. However, the remaining factors may cause an adverse reaction when interacting with people who have one or more of these as a primary driving force.

9. Altruistic - People who are driven by the benefits they provide others.

21

10. Objective - People who are driven by the functionality and objectivity of their surroundings.

15

11. Instinctive - People who are driven by utilizing past experiences, intuition and seeking specific knowledge when necessary.

14

12. Resourceful - People who are driven by practical results, maximizing both efficiency and returns for their investments of time, talent, energy and resources.

Areas for Awareness

For years you have heard statements like, "Different strokes for different folks," "to each his own," and "people do things for their own reasons, not yours." When you are surrounded by people who share similar driving forces, you will fit in with the group and be energized. However, when surrounded by people whose driving forces are significantly different from yours, you may be perceived as out of the mainstream. These differences can induce stress or conflict.

This section reveals areas where your driving forces may be outside the mainstream and could lead to conflict. The further away you are from the mainstream on the high side, the more people will notice your passion about that driving force. The further away from the mainstream on the low side, the more people will view you as indifferent and possibly negative about that driving force. The shaded area for each driving force represents 68 percent of the population or scores that fall within one standard deviation above or below the national mean.

Introduction Integrating Behaviors and Motivators Section

The ultimate power behind increasing job satisfaction and performance comes from the blending of your behaviors and motivators. Each individually is powerful in order to modify your actions, but the synergy of blending the two moves you to a whole new level.

In this section you will find:

- Potential Behavioral and Motivational Strengths
- Potential Behavioral and Motivational Conflict
- Ideal Environment
- Keys to Motivating
- Keys to Managing

Potential Behavioral and Motivational Strengths

This section describes the potential areas of strengths between Amy's behavioral style and top four driving forces. Identify two to three potential strengths that need to be maximized and rewarded in order to enhance on-the-job satisfaction.

- Tends to make decisions based on facts and processes rather than return on investment.
- Completes a due diligence process when working on critical organizational tasks.
- Sees the details and resources needed to achieve the desired outcome.
- Lets her work demonstrate her uniqueness, rather than talking about herself.
- Brings a good mixture of procedure orientation and creativity.
- She brings extreme detail and precision to the project in order to enhance the experience.
- Clearly defines and clarifies procedures by researching and providing all available information.
- Wants to know everything about the process, which leads to high standards and results.
- Will ask all of the questions and gather all the data to make every outcome the best it can be.
- Will judge based on facts.
- Helps those who are willing to work for great results through a detailed process.
- Brings organization for those striving for the same goal.

Potential Behavioral and Motivational Conflict

This section describes the potential areas of conflict between Amy's behavioral style and top four driving forces. Identify two to three potential conflicts that need to be minimized in order to enhance on-the-job performance.

- Will have a desire to accommodate, but will be fearful of failure.
- Only looks for the safe investment regardless of time and resources.
- Desires to be seen as selfless, yet is fearful of making mistakes.
- May feel her view is the only way and not see the subjectivity in her viewpoint.
- Her process may not always translate to beauty or creativity.
- Feels a better job could be done if more focus was on the experience of the project.
- May be seen as a procrastinator due to her desire for all information and fear of making a mistake.
- Wants a consistent process but constantly looking to make sure it is correct.
- May appear overly data- or theory-focused.
- Wants to utilize others skills but sometimes gets upset when others don't follow rules.
- Wants to see results but also has a desire to police the happenings of the organization.
- May micro manage and in turn, unintentionally alienate others.

Keys to Motivating

All people are different and motivated in various ways. This section of the report was produced by analyzing Amy's driving forces. Review each statement produced in this section with Amy and highlight those that are present "wants."

Amy wants:

- Documentation of the project to complete organizational goals.
- All facts and details necessary to achieve daily tasks.
- Documented processes to follow that have previous evidence of achieving organizational results.
- The opportunity to put systems and processes in place to support the balance and workings of the organization.
- To have charts and information attractively displayed for the purpose of function.
- The ability to base company morale initiatives on facts and data.
